Erica's practice focuses on a wide variety of commercial transactions, including corporate structuring, mergers and acquisitions, corporate compliance, sponsorship deals, and general corporate law, as well as technology transactions, including negotiating and drafting licensing, software, service, and other technology-related agreements. She also advises on privacy-related matters, including drafting internal policies, data privacy agreements, and privacy notices, in accordance with applicable international, federal, state, and local privacy laws.

She also advises on corporate transactions, including stock sales, asset sales, and tax-free mergers. Erica has extensive experience with nonprofit clients, advising on formation, tax exemption, and compliance and operational matters.

With her public accounting and business background, she brings more than 13 years of taxation, operational, financial, and auditing experience to her practice. Her prior experience includes providing business and tax consulting services to corporations, pass-through entities, sole proprietors, and various exempt organizations, such as foundations, trade associations, and charitable organizations.
