The Future: Competition, Complexity, Contention… and Arent Fox.

Experience and accomplishments clearly demonstrate our high level of expertise in government relations, but what issues will drive your business in the future? What are your legislative priorities?

- Health care reform implementation will speed up dramatically leading up to 2014. This will cause industry dissolution, consolidation and regulation – and only the strong will survive.

- Medical device manufacturers will face state-by-state battles for reimbursements and coverage.

- Privacy and data security issues with electronic health records will be contentious within the next few years, making creative solutions essential.

- Managing and restraining growth and spending in Medicare and Medicaid programs will alter the landscape and necessitate proactive advocacy game plans.

- New growth in for-profit health care facilities and organizations, plus senior housing and nursing facilities, will be some of the strongest areas in health care.

- Provider reimbursement will become more tied to quality measures, less on procedures conducted, and there will be greater movement to bundled payments and episodic payments.

- Greater efforts in fraud prevention on the front end of the process will mean increased scrutiny of claim submissions.
